Success in the Middle Act

H.R. 1578

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Of the 49.5 million students enrolled in public schools for the 2021 - 2022 school year, approximately 18 million young adolescents are enrolled in the middle grades (5th through 9th). Research and practice show that to help middle grades students achieve, they require challenging and engaging instruction; teachers and administrators who are knowledgeable and prepared to provide young adolescents with a safe and supportive learning environment; and organizational structures which promote collaboration and social equity. Neuroscience indicates the majority of middle grade students are in a critical stage of brain development that promotes productive adulthood.

According to ACT, the level of academic achievement that students attain by eighth grade impacts a students' college and career readiness more than academic experiences in high school. A student who falls behind in the middle grades may never recover academically. For students who live in high poverty neighborhoods, the quality of education they receive in the middle grades affects high school graduation rates, preparedness for college, and future achievement levels.

While education often remains a popular topic in policy conversations, the middle grades are often overlooked. The Success in the Middle Act aims to improve the education of middle grade students in low-performing schools so that students are prepared for success in high school and postsecondary institutions. This legislation provides grants to States and districts to create comprehensive school-wide action plans, develop rigorous curriculum, provide professional development for school personnel, and implement student supports.
